"MUDDLED UP"
One Reel Bluebird Comedy
Featuring Charles Puffy

* * *

Puffy, a wealthy clubman, seeing the distress of Augustus, a brother of the four hundred, who has just received a telegram announcing the coming of an aunt whom he has never seen and who believes him to be the father of a son, agrees to impersonate a child to help the man to stay in the good graces of his doting aunt. Augustus calls a matrimonial agency to get a wife, but they can't accommodate him so he calls an employment agency, who fill his order by sending an ugly looking maid. The matrimonial agency afterwards send a raving beauty who arrives first and takes up her duties as wife for a few days. When the ugly maid arrives she is mistaken for the aunt and life is made so unbearable for her by the harmless antics of the child who is clever with the hammer that she leaves in a rage. The real aunt arrives and is very gracious to the nephew, reaching in her purse and pulling out a gift of $5,000 for his son Puffy, whose new wealth wins him the love of his "mother".
